

ABSTRACT

A projection system including a light source, such as a laser light source, wherein a projection light beam is generated by means of an oscillating mirror starting from the light source. At least one light sensor is provided in the marginal zone of the projection light beam for detecting the position of the oscillating mirror.